Why Murguma?

Muruguma is a folk village on the boundary of Purulia and Jharkhand. It is nearly 335 km from Kolkata. Muruguma has reserved its place in the slope of Ajodhya hills.

Muruguma is the place where one can experience the charismatic Chhau Dance. It has its roots in the Purulia district in West Bengal and extracts inspiration from martial arts and combative training. Stories are depicted through dancing, which is why elaborate masks and headgear associated with battle and war are worn during the performance.

It's a matter of pride being a Bengali that UNESCO has listed Purulia's Chhau Dance on the world heritage list of dances.

No, Muruguma is not only for Chhau, here are some of the unique points why one should choose Muruguma as their next
